At Honeywell, we're uniquely qualified to deliver integrated solutions for chemical and industrial plant security.

As a leader in both security technology and process control technology and as an operator of our own chemical plants, we truly understand the challenges companies face when investing in security. Honeywell solutions include video surveillance, access control, perimeter protection, visitor management and cyber security — and can be scaled for sites of all sizes, adapted to different risk levels and seamlessly integrated with process control and building controls. What we've learned through our own investment in chemical plant security enables us to deliver a solution that is more effective and more affordable — it's a solution that will protect your plant and employees, meet regulatory requirements and keep our surrounding communities safe.
